Summer Camps around Asheville and Hendersonville (Images of America) Melanie English Historically, western North Carolina has been a haven for summer camps, sustaining one of the highest concentrations of summer camps in America. For generations, the natural beauty, rustic terrain, and cool climates of the southern Appalachian Mountains have attracted campers from around the world. In the last decades of the 19th century, the summer camp movement arose in the Northeast in response to industrial era concerns about the waning of traditional values and new child development theories. By the turn of the 20th century, the first residential summer camps had emerged around the popular resort towns of Asheville, Hendersonville, Brevard, Black Mountain, and Lake Lure, North Carolina. Founded on lakeshores surrounded by woodlands, these camps offered an array of activities, such as archery, canoeing, horseback riding, swimming, and woodcraft, that instilled lifelong lessons in youth and forged lasting friendships. Today, many of the same camp traditions like council rings and campfire stories are still passed along each summer. Readers will recognize familiar cabins and lakefronts with nostalgia in this collection of vintage photographs.

Mitchell Peed:

As a university student exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher inquired them to go to the library or even make summary for some e-book, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's heart or real their interest. They just do what the professor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to there but nothing reading very seriously. Any students feel that reading is not important, boring along with can't see colorful photographs on there. Yeah, it is to become complicated. Book is very important for you personally. As we know that on this time, many ways to get whatever we want. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Summer Camps around Asheville and Hendersonville (Images of America) can make you feel more interested to read.
